CHANGING THE RULES OF WHISKY

Nomad is one of the most innovative whiskies because the majority of malt whiskies are finished in sherry casks that have been sent to Scotland from Jerez. Nomad is the first whisky in the world to be finished in the González Byass cellars in Jerez de la Frontera, following a prior ageing in Scotland, changing the unwritten rules of whisky.

NOMAD, THE FIRST OUTLAND WHISKY: A UNIQUE AGEING PROCESS

A Premium blended whisky produced from 30 different malt and grain whiskies from Speyside (The Highlands, Scotland) with an average age of 6 years. The resulting blend is then refined through a minimum of 1 year ageing in old Pedro Ximenez casks, in the unique conditions of the historic centenary cellar of González Byass in Jerez.

This double ageing, firstly in Scotland then in Jerez is unique, and makes Nomad OUTLAND WHISKY a true rarity.

TASTING NOTE

Bright amber in colour, Nomad shows a concentrated aroma with notes of malt, wood and the unmistakable hint of Pedro Ximenez sherry. On the palate it is very smooth and elegant, initial flavours of raisins and honey build to a long and pleasant finish with notes of vanilla and dried fruits. A very elegant yet complex whisky.
