INTRODUCING THE GLEN SCOTIA 'ICONS OF CAMPBELTOWN' SERIES

A celebration of The Campbeltown market cross – a community meeting point for storytelling – each release in this annual five part series takes its inspiration from the series of saints and beasts carved into the cross' face. Among our favourites is the icon of a wolf, sparking imaginations and invoking folktales of the Scottish 'Wulver'.

Glen Scotia has partnered with celebrated artist, Joel Holtzman (Lucasfilm, Marvel, Disney, Macmillan) to bring each icon to life, while our Master Blender has selected and crafted a whisky fitting of each tale.

UNPEATED TAWNY PORT CASK FINISH

The 'Wulver' of Scottish folklore is not your typical story of witchcraft and terror. In fact, had he been in Campbeltown, he might just have fitted right in... Said to be a formidable creature with a gentle soul, the tales tell of his wolf's head, man's body, and coat of brown hair. Legends had it that he dwelled in a cave dug into the side of a wooded hill, a place where none dared to tread. Despite his terrifying appearances, the stories recount how he would spend his days quietly fishing in solitude, harbouring no ill will to neighbours. He was known to generously share his catch with the poor and needy of his neighbouring community, leaving fish on their windowsills in the dark of the night. Our distilling community knows a thing or two about supporting each other in times of need. Like the Wulver, it comes naturally without expectation of thanks or reward – it is just in our Campbeltown DNA.

TASTING NOTES

This limited edition unpeated 12-year-old Single Malt Whisky has been matured in hand-selected bourbon barrels before resting for nine months in ex-Tawny Port casks. Bursting with red fruits, forest berries, and dark chocolate, the finish is long and enduring, like the legend of the Wulver. A subtle maritime character leaves no question which distillery this limited edition hails from.
